

What Type of DJ Are You?

Music Directors are always looking for new talents alongside already established artists. So this could be contemporary artists trying to break into the scene and an artist who is already well experienced in producing music or playing records for a long time for a small crowd. And nowadays, with so many fish in the sea, it is essential to stand out, and there are many ways. But in the end, it all comes down to your skills and if you like to perform and entertain the crowd. Before we look into what type of DJ you are, let's look at a few generic types of DJs.

The Performer

Think about DJs like The Black Madonna, Jeff Miles, or Mr. Scruff. These are craftspeople whose most essential qualities are their DJ skills, knowledge of music, and ability to make the crowds dance. These artists are commonly booked as residents of clubs and as build-up DJs before the headliner. In some scenes, they are referred to as a selector, storyteller, or DJ DJs. They can create the right atmosphere because they can adapt well to various crowds in different situations. You won't find these DJs in the charts so often as the DJ / Producer dominates them.

The DJ / Producer

Think about Martin Garrix, The Chainsmokers, and Marshmello. These DJs are primarily electronic music producers who perform as a DJ playing his and other people's music or as a live act. Most commonly, they start as bedroom producers who became famous because of their releases. The greater the success of their productions, the more fans they gain and the more tickets they sell. Which makes them interesting and valuable for buyers. Their biggest challenge is to create an experience that matches the quality of their productions. They have to release new tracks regularly to stay relevant. Keep in mind that a good producer is not per se a good DJ and vice versa.

The DJ / Curator

Now let's think about artists like Armin van Buuren, Richie Hawtin, Nina Kraviz, Solomon, or Joris Voorn. These type of DJs represents a platform or a brand. These platforms could be a label, an event organization, a podcast or radio show, or any other organization where they can be used as a curator. These artists are commonly booked because they represent these organizations, sounds, or movements. The more followers these organizations have, the more attractive they are for buyers as they often have their stage or label night. The greatest challenge for these DJs is finding like-minded talents and making sure that their platform's content is consistent in both output and quality.

The DJ / Influencer

Artists like Idris Elba, Salvatore Ganacci, or Paris Hilton have become very common in recent years. This is primarily a celebrity or influencer who is also a DJ. Often they became famous before they became a DJ. These types of DJs are booked for their following and marketing value. Their biggest challenge is to prove, once on stage, that they can also perform on a quality level both musically and technically.

ROBIN NAP

Sometimes, artists start in a different category than they are right now as their personalities and challenges are involved. Example: The Performer is searching for their sound to speak to a broader audience. They have become so famous for their sound and have shifted to the DJ / Producer category.

Now that we understand the different types of DJs a little more, it is time to investigate them a bit more. We will start by examining artists of various kinds in your local country and internationally. Knowing about their paths and roles in the industry will give you a deeper understanding of the scene. It may also inspire you on your path.

Write down three local and three international DJs you admire and their types.

1
2
3

Why do you think they are so successful? Write down all the strong points of each of them.

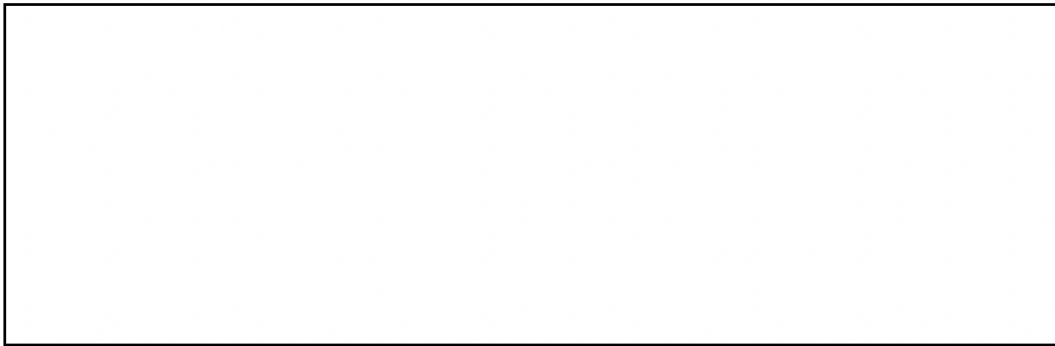

--

ROBIN NAP

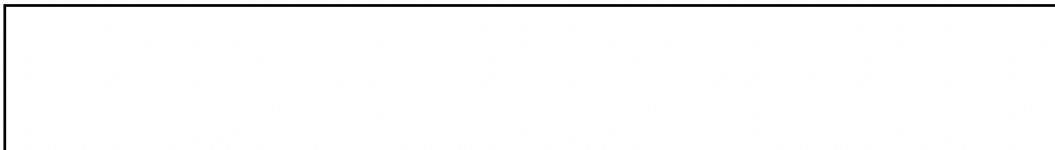

Where are they playing next month?

A large, empty rectangular box with a black border, intended for handwritten notes or a drawing.

Optional: Check out a performance of both a local and international DJ in the next month. Who else is on the flyer, and where do they fit in?

A large, empty rectangular box with a black border, intended for handwritten notes or a drawing.

After you have investigated these types of DJs, where do you fit?

A large, empty rectangular box with a black border, intended for handwritten notes or a drawing.